Pocket Park for Baruth
Baruth 2008

A pocket park is an abstraction
of something larger,
a compression down to essential signals.

tsk, tsk, tsk, tsk, tsk, tsk,

The comforting sound of something being done.

Pocket Park in „Blumen für Baruth“ exhibition Sept. - Oct. 2008

We hear.
A piece of summer in the ear and a whole park.
Three lawn sprinklers create a green space.
A polyrhythmic space.

soundengineer: Frans Gillberg, Malmo

In the background of the pocket park the chirping of a cricket almost unnoticably accentuates the sounding loops.
